For Women
Yeshiva University . . .

and how from

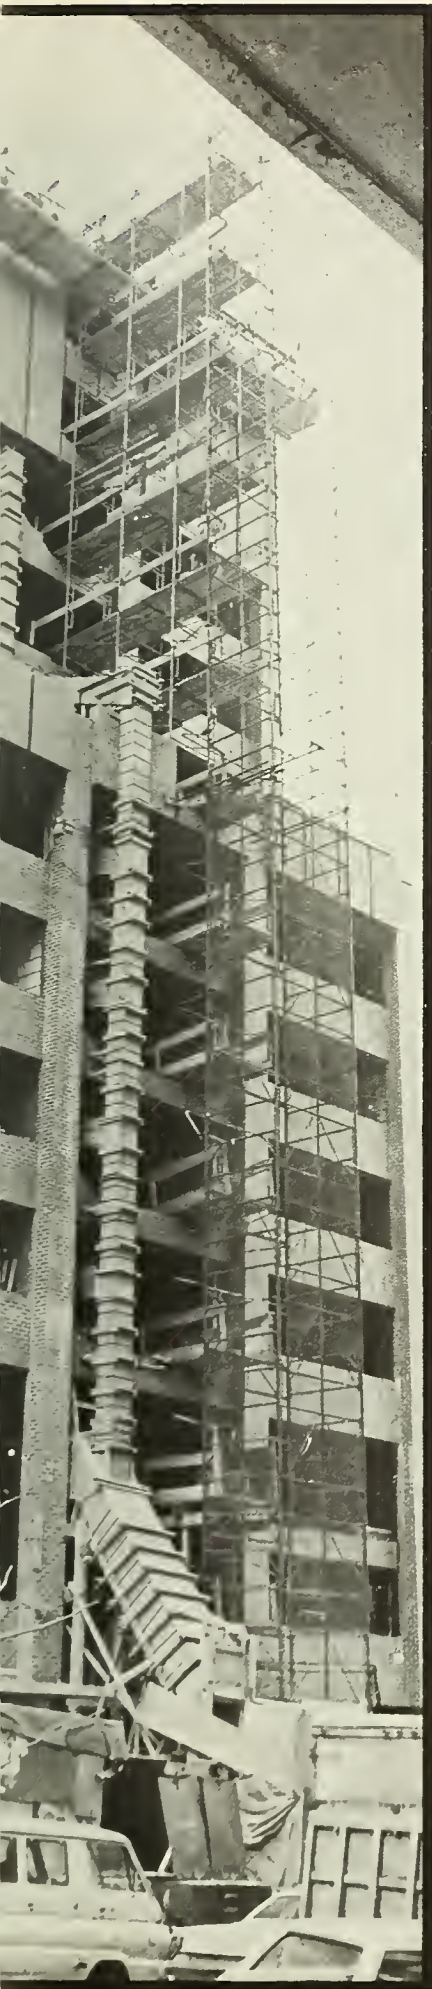

its humble beginnings . . .

it came

Observers of yesterday,

we are the preservers of tomorrow.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

The Stern girl strives to make today ideal,

Move then with new desires,
For where we used to build and love
Is no man's land.

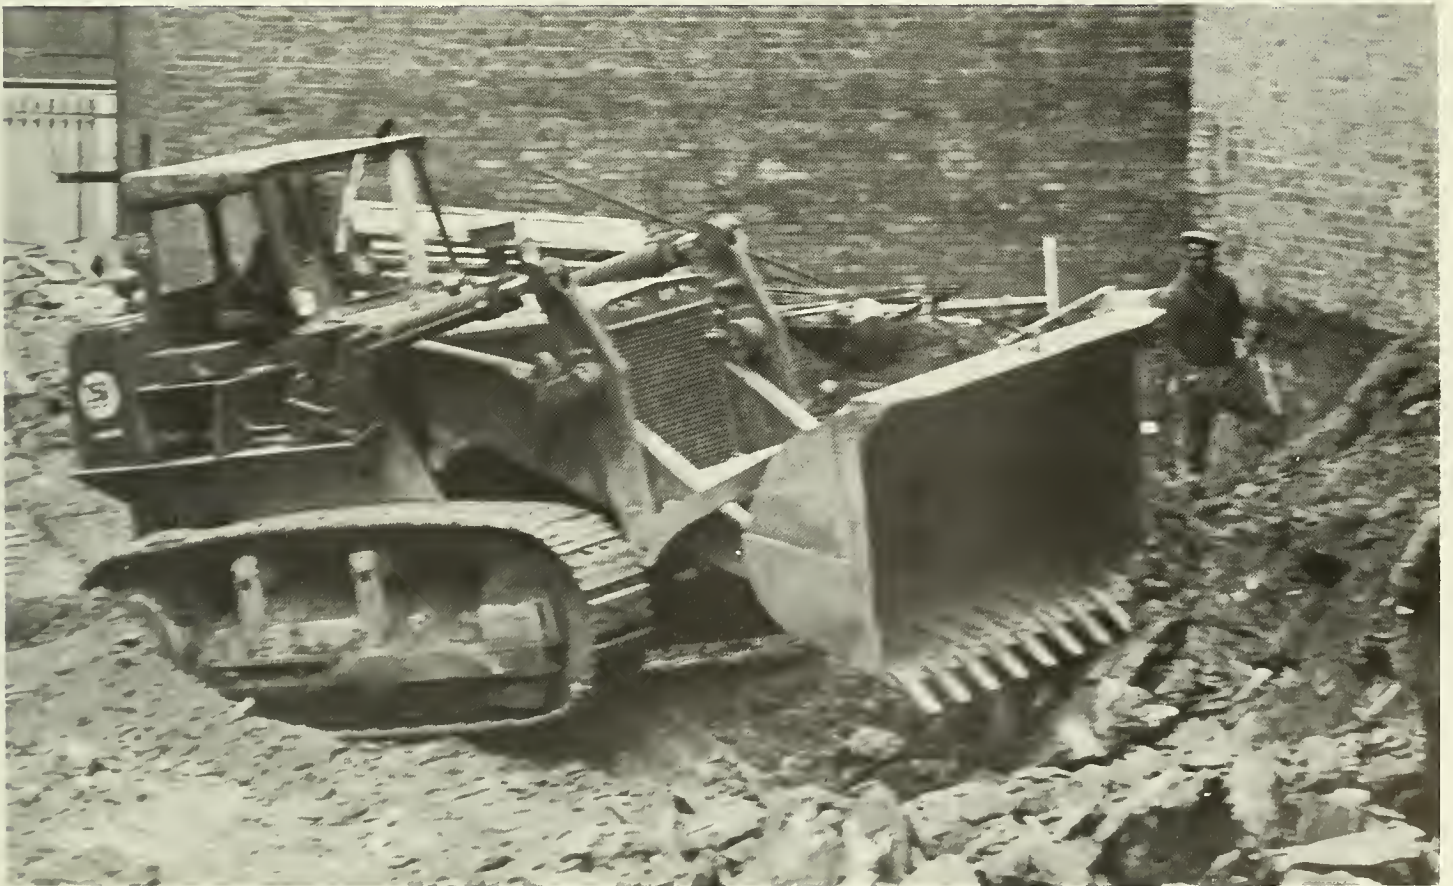

FOUR YEARS

A time to tear down and a time to build up.
The earth yields, and out of the debris of yesterday we construct a personal reality elevated by religious vision. In our four years at Stern we have witnessed a turbulent metamorphosis in ourselves and in the character of our school.

Nous sommes arrivées!

provoking,
panicky,
painful,
perverse . . .

But there was always a helping hand.

Dean during our freshman year, Norman Frimer was truly involved with the student body. He knew each girl by name and was always ready to humanely bend bureaucracy. With the bending came innovation; he left Stern much richer than he found it.

“But for those first affections,
Those shadowy recollections
Which, be they what they may,
Are yet the fountain light of all our day.”

Stern girls participated in an off-Broadway production of The Merchant of Venice in February of 1968.

Entering freshmen of the class of '71 included four sets of twins.

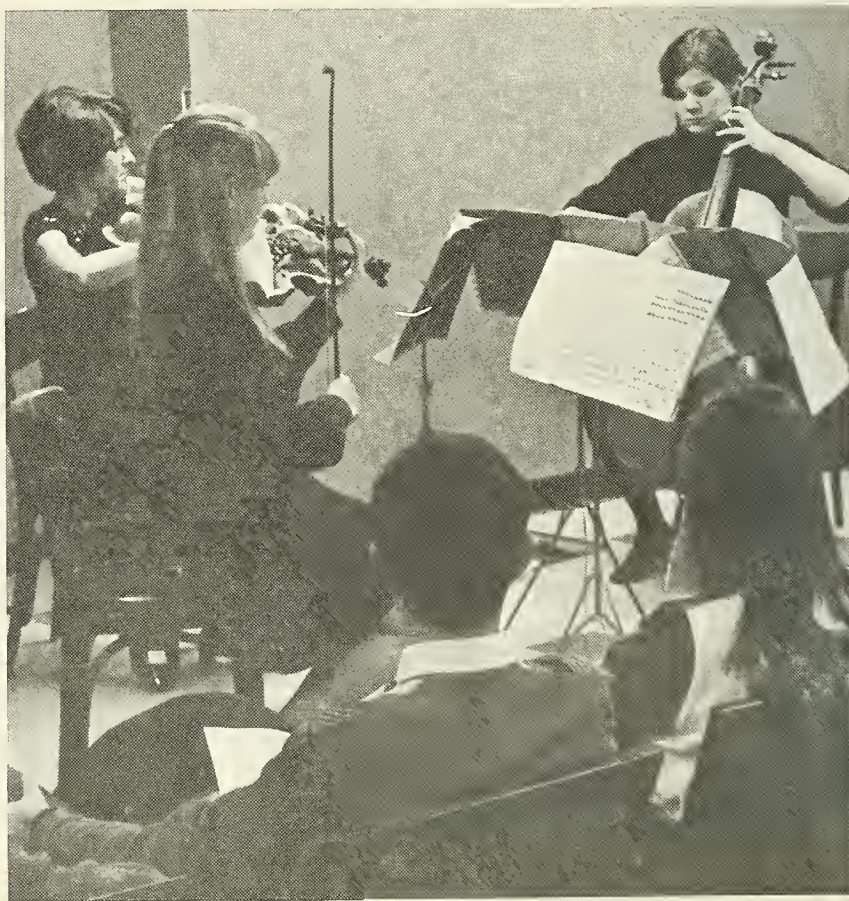

Ambassador Arthur Goldberg spoke at Yeshiva University's commencement in 1969.

In our sophomore year a concert series was instituted.

“ . . . their savage eyes
turned to a modest gaze by the sweet power of music.”

Let us lift our voices
in song and beg for peace in the world.

Our chorus exulted in the miracle of Jewish survival — Purim,
Chanukah, Israeli Independence.

Fitness Goes Extracurricular!

Stern's first basketball team was started in our freshman year.

We opened our eyes
to the academic world around us.

Professor Emeritus of Art, Rachel Wischnitzer, renowned scholar, was honored at an assembly in 1968.

In December of 1969, the Speech Arts Forum presented a controversial program on Agnew and the press.

"I hold the world but as a stage where every man must play his part . . .

and Charlie Brown's a sad one.

We learned to act in our own lives as well. Student Council President and Observer Editor led us in our first radical move — a threatened strike to gain our new building.

Success!

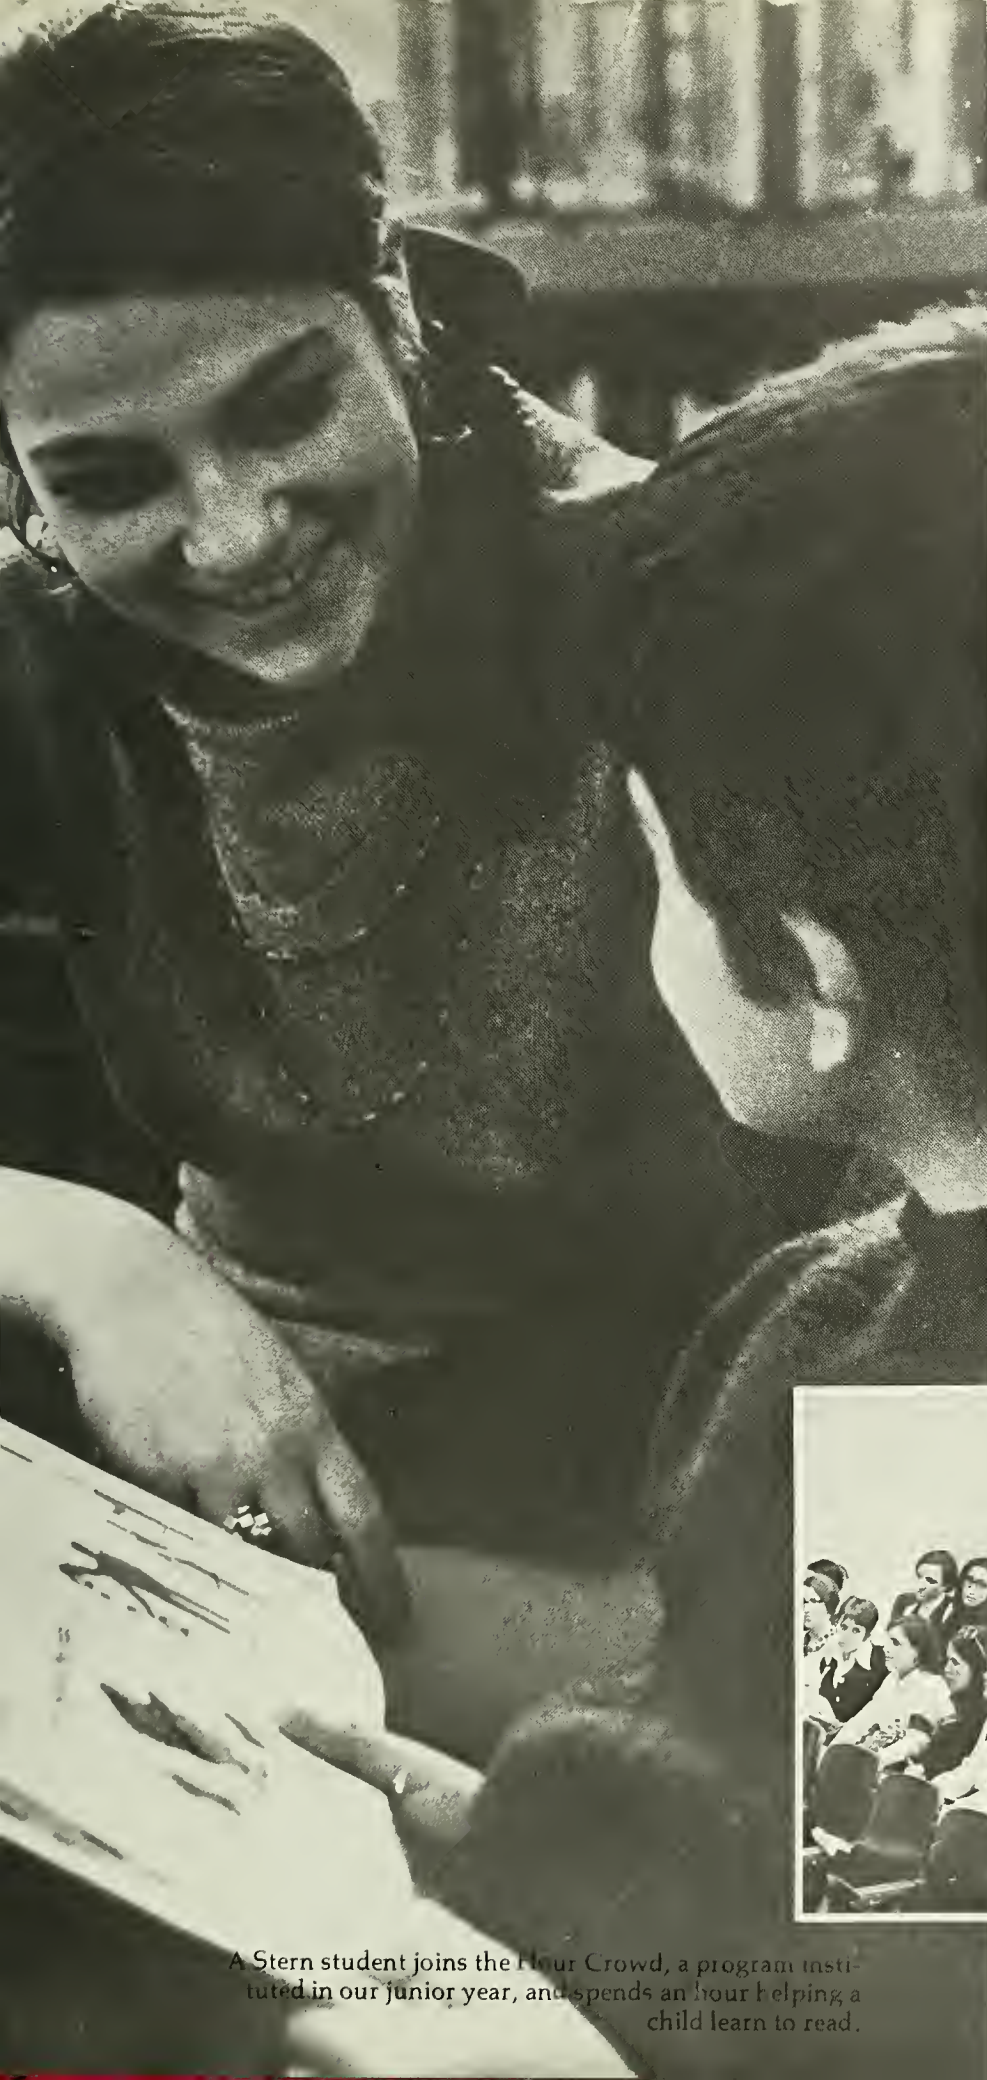

A strike was not necessary. Funds were mustered and an official groundbreaking ceremony was held in the spring of '69.

Junior Year In Israel

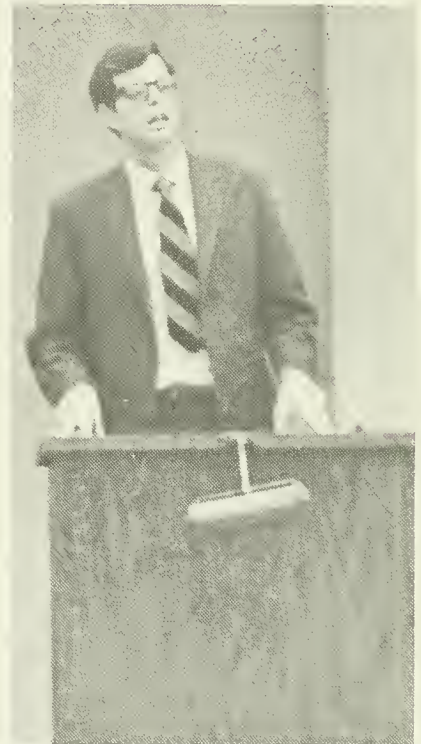

"While here I stand, not only with the sense of present pleasure, but with pleasing thoughts that in this moment there is life and food for future years, and so I dare to hope."

We became aware of those in need around the corner and around the world.

From Dennis Praeger we learned of the plight of Soviet Jewry.

A Stern student joins the Hour Crowd, a program instituted in our junior year, and spends an hour helping a child learn to read.

Concerned with national policy, we participated in the Vietnam Moratorium.

“We will walk on our own feet; we will work with our own hands; we will speak our own minds.”

In the spring of '70, we picketed to insure Yeshiva's future as a Torah institution.

Dedication

We dedicate our yearbook to Rabbi Raphael Weinberg: scholar, teacher, friend, idealist. Each of his Jewish History classes gave something to his students — a philosophical problem to ponder, a new facet of the Jewish past, or a funny story to tell roommates. Rabbi Weinberg was one of us. His deep blue eyes crinkled with laughter at our good times and narrowed with concern at our personal problems.

Our teacher, our friend had a dream which he shared with each of us. Emigration to Eretz Yisroel, the Holy Land, the Jewish Land. We were sorry to lose him, but we are happy to see his dream come true.

"And how do we know that Alexander the Great was so beloved by the Jews? You've dated lots of nice Jewish boys named Alex, haven't you? Have you ever met one named Ahasuerus?"

It is with special pleasure that I extend congratulations to the 1971 graduating class of Stern College for Women. You have been participants in the notable growth and development of the College during four years of changing times in the world, the nation, the community, and Yeshiva University.

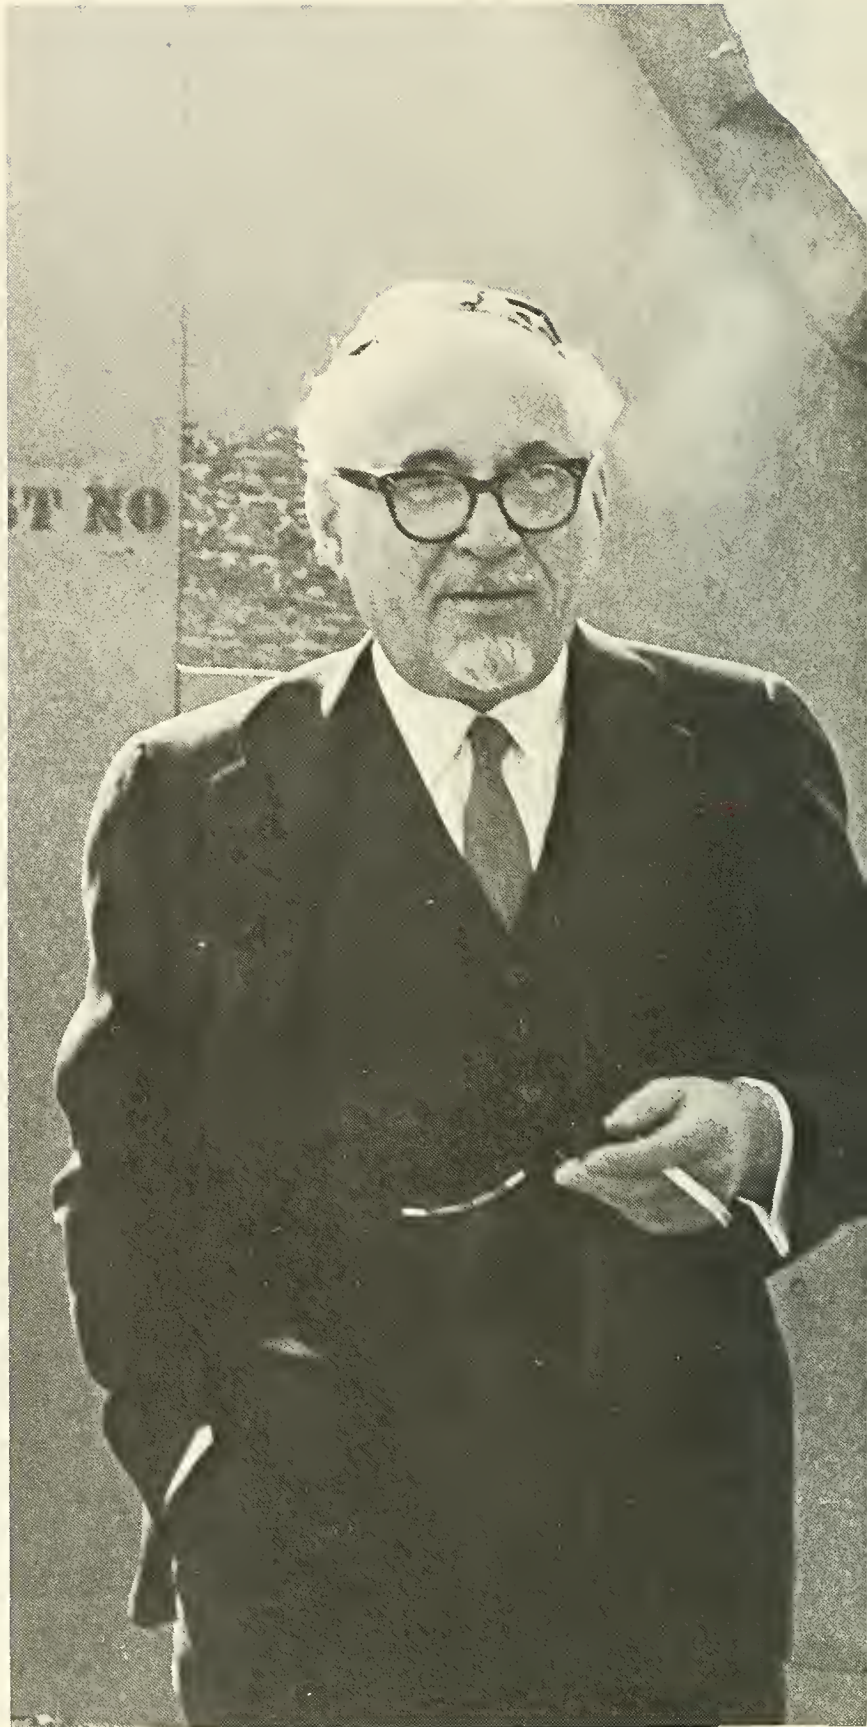

As students you have sought to gain in the spiritual strength of our timeless heritage while simultaneously devoting yourselves to the intellectual quest provided by the arts and sciences. As you go forward to fill your roles in home life, career, and community, you will be fortified to meet the challenges and to set an example of dedication to the highest ideals of our people and to give consecrated service to the Almighty and your fellowmen.

May you be granted continued well being and fulfillment.

Sincerely yours,

Samuel Belkin

Samuel Belkin
President

I take great pride in sending greetings to the 1971 graduating class of Stern College for Women.

This fall you shared with us the satisfaction of dedicating the new classroom-administration building which enlarged and enhanced the physical facilities of the College. The force behind the growth of the College has been generated by the intellectual and spiritual qualities of the high calibre student body, joined with a dedicated faculty and administration. You have contributed to a memorable period of the school's development, and we can all be proud of your participation.

In today's world of change you face exciting challenges as you go forward to take your roles in the home, in further study, in careers, and in the community. I am sure that the advantages you have had at the College for intellectual development through the arts and sciences and for spiritual strength through our Judaic heritage will enable you to continue to build worthy lives of personal fulfillment and service to the community.

I extend to each of you my warmest congratulations on reaching this significant milestone and my very best wishes for the future.

Max Stern

In our sophomore year David Mirsky became our dean. A quiet man, our dean works efficiently and well from the confines of his office.

Four years pass rather quickly, but under certain circumstances, or at a given period of life, they can be very decisive in shaping a complete lifetime. The years you have spent at Stern College may very well prove to be, in retrospect, the most decisive years in your lives.

The years you spent in college were years of radical upheaval and change on the American Campus. In this period students began to use the campus as a staging ground for campaigns to establish the student voice as an instrument to be reckoned with in matters of policy not only on the campus but in society as a whole. It was during these years that, impelled by the determined stand of student, serious rethinking of many matters — material issues and decisions, value systems and structures, campus policies and practices — took place, and in many instances basic alterations and modifications were introduced. This drive and movement made itself felt at Stern in matters particular to our College, and in many areas you were responsible for initiating reappraisals and changes which, even if they did not significantly affect you, will have significant effects on students for years to come.

As you leave the college, I believe that you will carry over into your endeavors in the years to come, whether in your continued schooling or in other activities you will pursue, the effects of this experience. Two matters, I believe, will be of greatest significance, as lessons drawn from the campus ferment of the past years at Stern College.

First, is the increased concern for, and therefore increased commitment to, the principle that for the fullest fulfillment of self in life it is mandatory for the Jewish student to strive for and attain as strong an identification as possible with Judaism and as intensive and broad a knowledge as possible of the Jewish heritage. To feel the emotional pull of Jewish identity is not enough if one hopes to achieve full psychic wholeness. One must be prepared to practice in daily life the teachings of traditional Jewish life if they are to become vital and energizing forces which give meaning and significance to our activities as human beings operating in a modern society, and not remain glorious but ineffectual generalizations. Another way to ensure this end is to acquire as full and sound knowledge of our heritage and its teachings as one is able to. Second is the lesson that you can speak and be heard. It was in good part student demand that spurred changes in our programs.

Remember, then, as you enter the broader community, that if you are committed and dedicated, you have the power to effect change, and if you keep before you the goals and aspirations which Stern College has always kept before it, and to which it continues to be dedicated, the changes you effect will be for good.

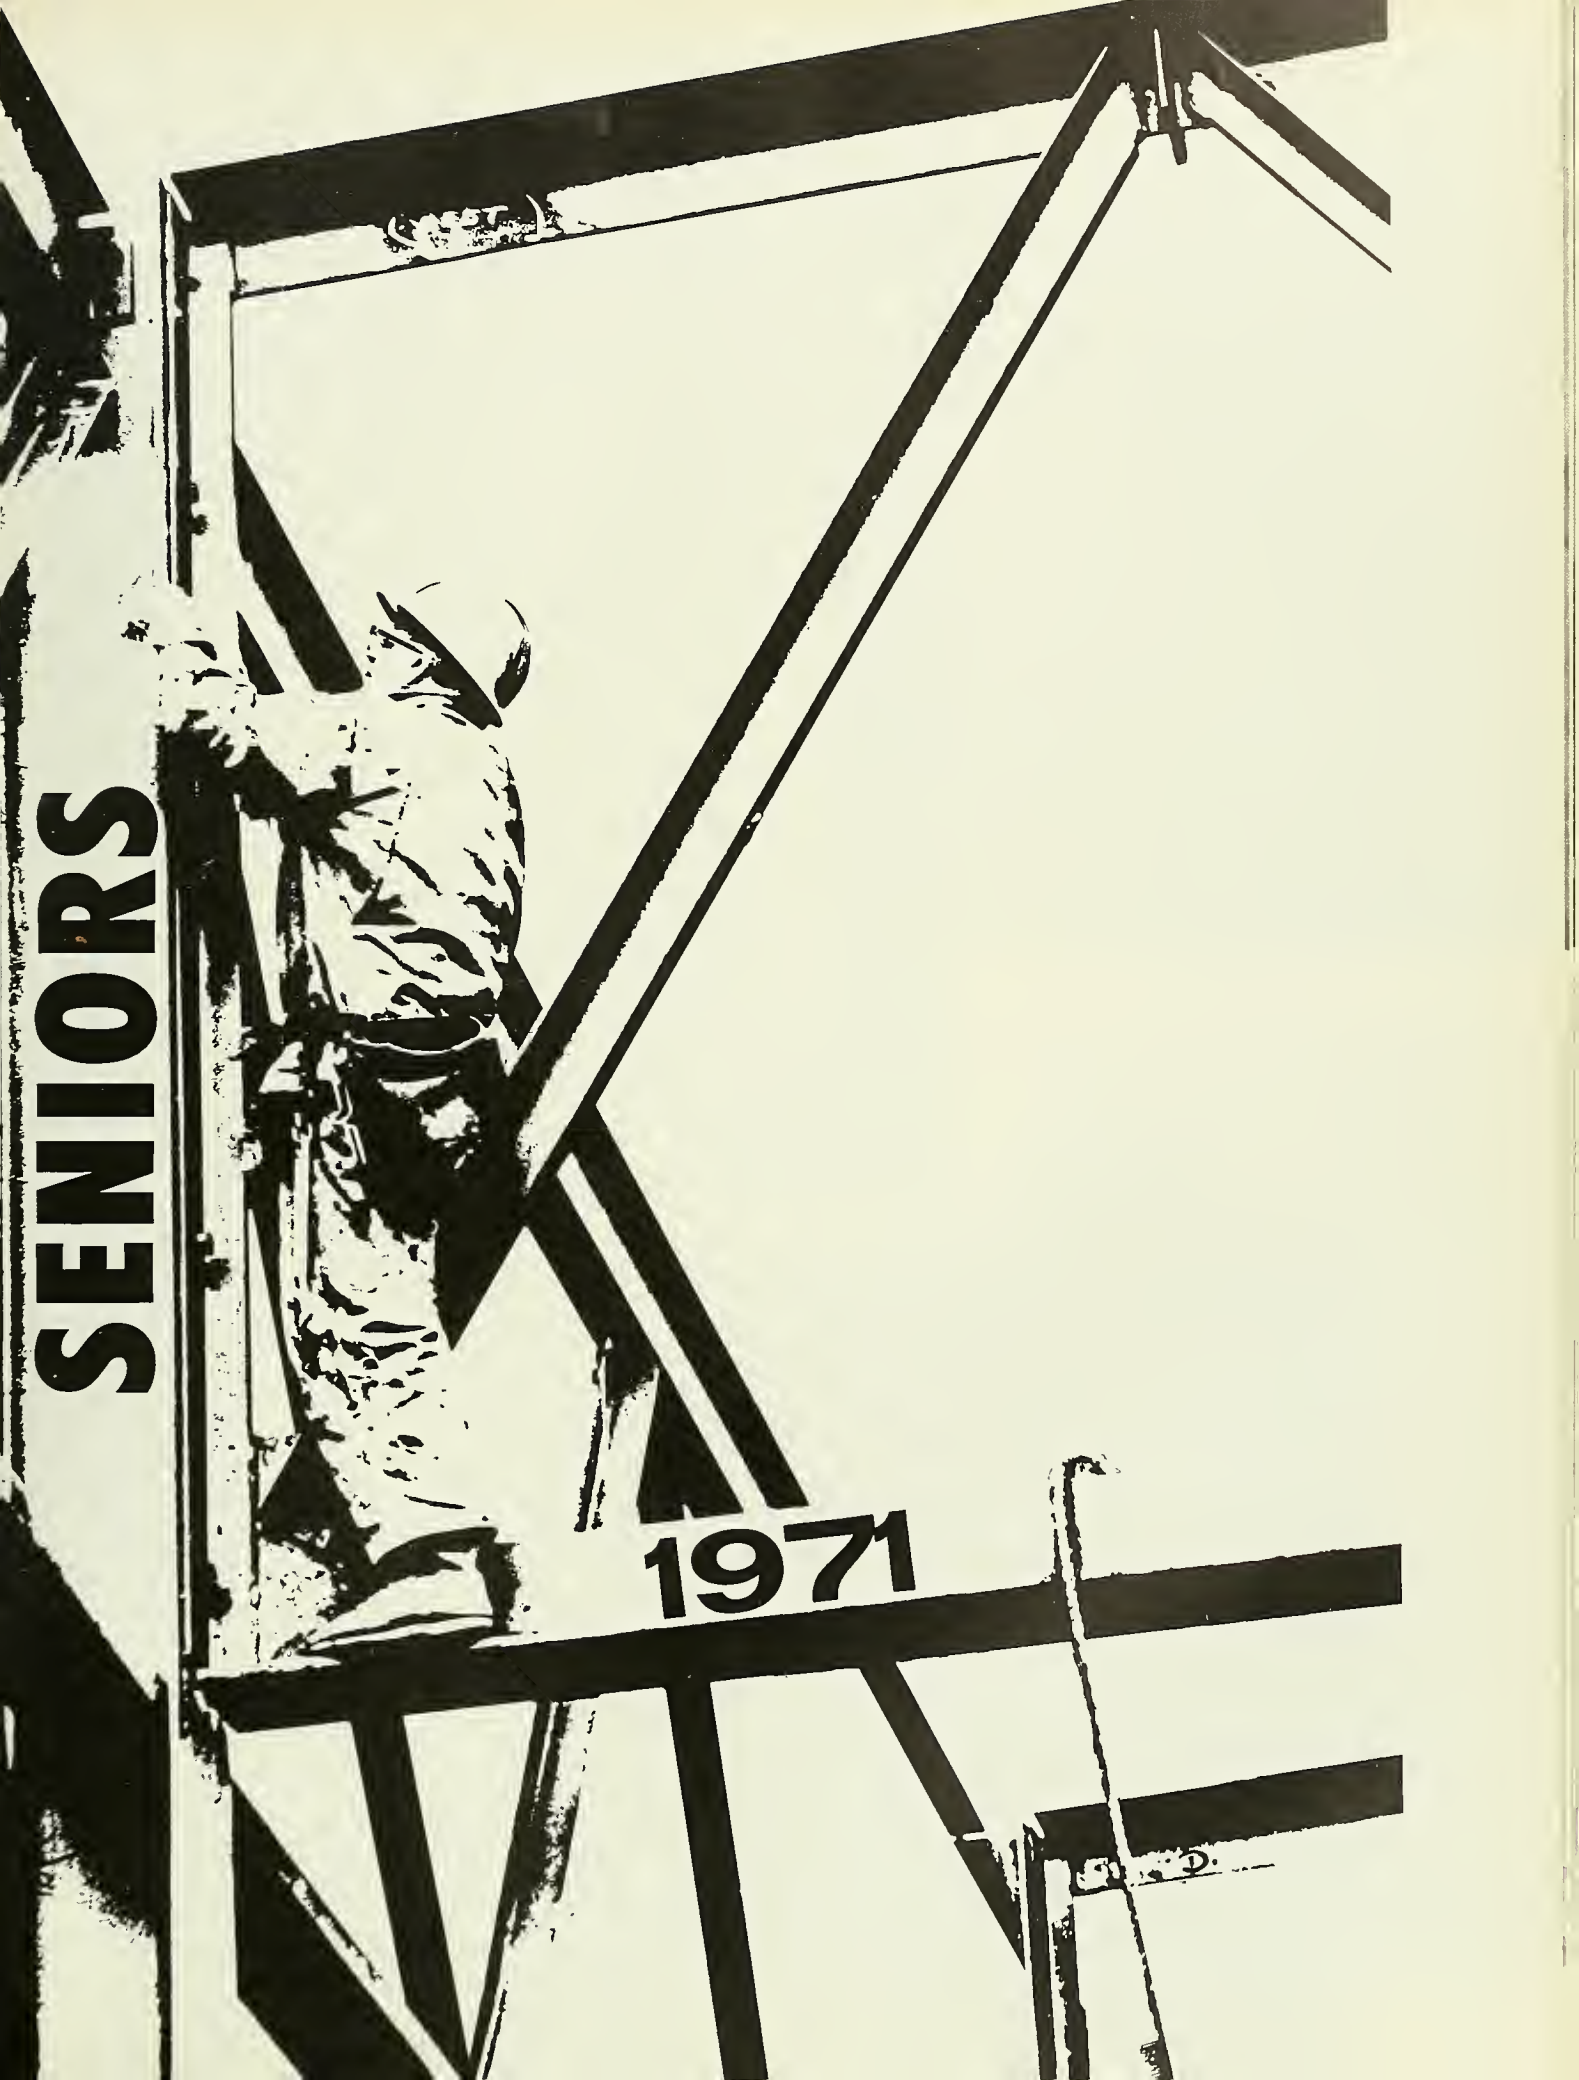

As you leave the College, our best wishes go with you. May you find fulfillment in your lives over the years and return to renew and be renewed in this institution which stands for the great ideal of preparing leaders who will reinforce the general community by application of the great fructifying principles and practices of the Jewish tradition.

Mrs. Lubetski and her staff managed to keep the library semi-open while it was moving to the new building this year. The library is small, but we have found that if you bother to pause before your trip to 42nd Street and check the Stern card catalogue, you will often save yourself a trek.

Student Council

Student government agencies across the country have had an unspectacular year. Stern's Student Council is no exception.

Dorm Council

It was a big year for the Dorm Council. They finally did something with those dues — gave us a freshly-painted, black-and-yellow lounge. Shades of Halloween!

SSSJ was especially active during this year of real crisis for Soviet Jewry. Besides demonstrations, they sponsored a prayer vigil which featured student dramatists and received excellent television coverage.

Chevrat Nashim

Chevrat Nashim is our version of Women's Lib — sort of Women's Lip.

Torah Activities Committee

Torah Activities Committee is an organization designed to promote religious spirit in SCW. It sponsors extra-curricular classes in Religious Studies, publishes parsheyot hashavuah, and encourages bikur cholim.

The Stern girl has changed. The new Stern girl in the new Stern building is what this yearbook is all about. We think she's changed for the better. Suddenly New York really is her campus, as she leaves B. Altman's to face the world.

We've come out these years — not in fluffy, pastel dresses, but in black bands of mourning for the Jew of Russia, the student of Kent State, and the child of the Vietnamese rice field.

We don't know all the answers. But in the past four years we've been learning where to find them. The Jew must govern himself by the Torah. It provides the steady faith on which we can lean in this transitory world. This is the model we will carry with us.

We would like to thank those who have helped make this statement, this book of the year, possible: the public relations staff of Yeshiva University, especially photographer David Weinhouse, for many fine pictures; Dr. Morris Epstein, our adviser; Phil St. Pierre, our devoted yearbook representative; a few hard-working seniors; and, of course, Sharen, Shelley, and Timmy for welcoming yearbook ads, pictures, layout sheets, copy, and co-editors-in-chief into an overcrowded 6H.
